Actuarial Software and Calculations – do you know where your professional responsibilities lie?

In response to the growth in the use of third party software and the reliance on support teams for producing actuarial calculations, the IFoA has produced a suite of guidance to help explain the professional responsibilities of actuaries in this situation.

This session, presented by representatives of the working party and the IFoA Executive will explain the context in which that guidance sits and provide an opportunity for attendees to consider some case studies bringing the topic to life.
